Professional Summary

Economist and Ph.D. candidate with six years of experience in applied microeconomics, randomized evaluations, and policy-oriented research, including direct engagement with Spanish public institutions on social policy. Experience includes field implementation of randomized evaluations with vulnerable populations in Uruguay, a research–practice partnership with public institutions in the United States, and the design of a funded school-based RCT in Catalonia. Trained in causal inference, experimental design, and applied microeconometrics, with experience producing quantitative evidence and translating research findings into policy outputs for non-academic audiences.

Core Competencies: Impact evaluation; randomized evaluations; evidence synthesis and dissemination; research-practice and government partnerships; RCT feasibility and implementation; applied microeconometrics; literature reviews; policy briefs and evaluation summaries; training and capacity building; stakeholder presentations.

Professional Experience

Institut d'Economia de Barcelona, Universitat de Barcelona

Predoctoral Researcher and Instructor

01/2023 – Present

Barcelona, Spain

- Conduct applied research in education and labor economics using administrative microdata and causal inference methods to study educational trajectories, gender inequality, and labor-market outcomes in Spain. Working papers presented at EALE, SEHO, KU Leuven, and Barcelona School of Economics.
- Design and prepare the implementation of a school-based randomized information intervention in secondary schools in Catalonia, funded by the Women and Science Program at Paris Dauphine–PSL, aimed at reducing the gender gap in STEM. Lead day-to-day project development, including treatment design, survey design and implementation planning, school engagement, budget management, research assistant supervision, and coordination with schools and education stakeholders.

Education Policy Analytics Lab, College of Education, University of Washington

Predoctoral Researcher

09/2018 – 09/2019

Seattle, United States

- Worked in a research-practice partnership with Seattle Public Schools — the largest K–12 provider in Washington State — analyzing administrative data on teacher effectiveness, absenteeism, recruitment, and retention in high-poverty schools.
- Shaped empirical questions through ongoing dialogue with district executives, school administrators, union representatives, and program managers, keeping the analysis connected to operational priorities.
- Produced internal reports, technical notes, and presentations to communicate findings to senior district leadership and support evidence-informed planning.

Center for Research in Applied Economics, Universidad de Montevideo

Research Assistant and Field Leader

06/2015 – 07/2018

Montevideo, Uruguay

- Managed field implementation workstreams for randomized evaluations with vulnerable populations in Uruguay, including a social benefits take-up and labor inclusion intervention with more than 300 informal street workers and a digital inclusion intervention with over 120 institutionalized older adults in a public hospital.
- Designed and revised survey instruments and field protocols, supervised data collection, cleaned and validated survey data, conducted quantitative analysis, and prepared reports, research outputs, and practitioner-facing materials.
- Coordinated day-to-day field activities with ministries, municipal departments, hospitals, frontline providers, social workers, research assistants, and implementing partners, ensuring field procedures, data quality, and implementation constraints remained aligned with the evaluation design.
